

This week at BPA, we have had a huge focus on our health and have some really exciting opportunities coming up. Launchpad had a visit from the Cooking Kitchen team where they had an afternoon based all around healthy eating and lifestyles, using kitchen tools and resources to chop fruit and make their very own fruit salad. There was some great learning taking place and some really vital life skills learnt.

We've also had Miss Lamb's Reception pupils come over to the hall again this week to engage in some really high quality PE and exercise. This is something they are really enjoying and again a great opportunity to support that transition over into the main part of school.

We have some exciting up and coming opportunities with our colleagues at Pure Gym. They are coming into school to support with our future family fun events and are also offering wellness checks every month for staff and parents which will run on site from 12 noon - 4pm. The dates for these are just being finalised and will be communicated with you in due course.

Finally, I would like to pay thanks to Sally Newton who has completed yet another amazing piece of artwork for us at Bramley. Our corridor of culture is looking incredible and her contributions have really helped enhance the learning environment for all of our pupils. We are looking forward to seeing what she produces for us in the Library over the coming weeks.
